Overview of This Research Guide

The following tables are intended to assist in locating and acquiring records containing information about the birth, marriage and/or divorce, and death of family members for the purpose of compiling a database of genealogical information as may be used in asserting and receiving recognition for specific claims of descendancy to kūpuna within Ko Hawai‘i Pae ‘Āina.

Many other types of records exist that are useful in this form of research including, but not limited to, church records, census records, and mo‘olelo describing kūpuna prior to the unification of the islands under Kamehameha I in 1810. This guide is focused primarily on locating documents that aid in connecting us to kūpuna from the present time until 1810 as this time range is more pertinent to us in establishing genealogical ties for the purpose of preventing current desecration as may be imposed by modern development.

This guide is focused primarily on assisting you with finding birth, marriage and divorce, and death records from government repositories as these repositories are typically more easily accessible to the general public. Additional resources for locating documents for kūpuna who were sent to, or who ended up at Kalaupapa are also included.

Organization of the Research Guide

The tables are arranged first in order by general, and semi-arbitrarily delineated time periods as follows:

- » “Statehood” until present, 1959 – 2020
- » The “Territorial” Era, 1900 – 1959
- » The Kingdom Era, 1810 – 1900

Within each time period, the tables are arranged by the following types of documents:

- » Birth Records
- » Marriage and Divorce Records
- » Death Records

Within each type of record (Birth, Marriage/Divorce, and Death) the tables are further arranged by:

- » Repository
- » Name of resource or finding aid
- » Date range of records (where available)
- » Physical location of the record or finding aid within the physical repository
- » URL where the documents or finding aids may be found (where available)
- » Notes and tips for searching the documents or finding aids

KU‘U ĒWE, KU‘U PIKO, KU‘U IWI, KU‘U KOKO: Mālama i nā Iwi Kūpuna

Where available, these tables include information on:

- » The physical locations of each resource within the repository
- » The date range of documents held within each collection
- » Notes and tips for searching each collection
- » Web addresses for resources that are accessible online

Additional tables are included to assist in finding information on kūpuna who lived at or were sent to Kalaupapa, and to provide additional resources for conducting mo‘okū‘auhau research in general.

Diagrams depicting the general layout of the Hawai‘i State Archives and the Hawai‘i State Public Library are included following the resource tables.
